Fact Sheet

Proof of identity of applicants for an electrical or gas worker's licence

June 2006

The Licensing Office of Energy Safety WA maintains a database of licensed electrical and gas operatives and ensures that the information is accurate and confidential, protecting operatives against the possible fraudulent use of their name.

Applicants for an electrical or gas worker's licence in Western Australia must prove their identity.

This fact sheet explains the requirements for an applicant to prove his or her identity.

Before an electrical or gas worker's licence will be issued, applicants must prove their identity by presenting one form of primary identification and one form of secondary identification from the following lists.

The documentation provided may be a photocopy of the original document. At least one document provided must show the signature of the applicant.

Primary Identification Documents:

- birth certificate
- current overseas passport
- Australian passport (expired not more than two years)
- photographic driver's licence (expired not more than 12 months)
- Western Australian proof of age card (not "18+ card")
- Australian citizenship papers
- visa or immigration document
- Australian document of identity (expired not more than two years)

Secondary Identification Documents:

- certificate of accomplishment from a recognised educational institution (or letter not more than 12 months old from the principal of such an institution)
- current bank, building society or credit union card, passbook or statement (not more than 12 months old)
- electoral enrolment card or other evidence of enrolment (not more than two years old)
- current entitlement card issued by a State or Federal Government Department e.g. Medicare card
- telephone, gas or electricity account (not more than two years old)
- land valuation notice (not more than two years old)
- water or local rate notice (not more than two years old)
- current licence or identity card issued by a government organisation (not a student identification card)
- Defence Force identification or discharge papers (not more than 12 months old)
